CALL FOR PAPERS

The forthcoming issue will focus on

ECONOMICS OF HIGHER EDUCATION

Issue editor: Dr Jan Brzozowski (Cracow University of Economics, Poland)

release: March 2016

papers submitting deadline: October 31, 2015

The higher education systems of Central and East European countries have gone in last two decades through a period of massive expansion with the dynamic increase in the number of students, the emergence of HE private institutions and quantitative expansion of public academic centres. It is sometimes said that such developments have been a crucial factor of relative success of several transitional economies. But now it becomes clear that these systems face hard challenges due to demographic change, limited public resources and increased international competition. This issue will address these challenges in a comparative perspective taking into account the experiences of various countries of the region and wide range of theoretical approaches.

Covered topics:

- The role of higher, vocational and secondary education in the regional development of the CEE countries
- Economic and demographic challenges to the financing of HE
- Quality assurance in the HE markets and institutions
- Migration and HE internationalization
- Innovativeness in HE
- Economic effects of Academia: cooperation with the private sector, student economic involvement etc.

SUBMISSION:

- Notification of the title of your paper until September 15, 2015.
- The complete articles must be submitted until October 31, 2015.
