Our College of Management, founded about 8 years ago, is the newest public business school in Taiwan. Even so, located in the center of Taipei, our business school was just ranked number 4 by a Taiwan media in last May.

Our business school consists of two graduate institutes, Graduate Institute of Management and Graduate Institute of Global Business and Strategy, also an Executive MBA program, and an undergraduate program of Business Administration. We have about 40 full time and part time faculties and we are still expanding our faculty pool. The major research concentrations of our faculty include Finance, Marketing, International Business, Strategy, Accounting, Economics, Information Management, Technology Management, Asia Business, and so on.

In each academic year, we admit about 35 local students and about 10 international students to our MBA program, about 40 local and 10 international students to our undergraduate program, and about 80 local business executives to our EMBA program. Since there are a lot of international businesses headquartered in Taipei, our business school is able to access to and establish strong relationship with globally leading businesses based in Taipei.

With ambition to become the leading business school based in the core of Taipei, we have been proactively approaching international cooperation in an attempt to pursue excellence in student learning and academic research. We signed a cooperative agreement with the deputy Dean Roth of Darla Moore Business School of University of South Carolina in Taipei. We jointly initiate a one-year dual degree MBA program recruiting students worldwide taking courses at campuses of NTNU and USC.

NTNU is transforming from a traditional educator/teacher cultivation university into a comprehensive university. In Taiwan, 50 % of high school presidents and 17% of university presidents are the alumni of NTNU. In addition, foreign students who study at NTNU gain an additional advantage by learning Chinese culture and Chinese at Mandarin Training Center (MTC). MTC at NTNU is the globally leading Chinese learning institute receiving around 1700 students from more than 70 countries each academic quarter. The MTC alumni, such as prior Prime Minister of Japan, Hashimoto Ryutaro, and that of Australia, Kevin Michael Rudd, are globally influential in politics and business.
