

Introduction

Cote d'Ivoire, also known as Ivory Coast, is a country in West Africa bordered by the Gulf of Guinea. Neighboring countries include Liberia, Guinea, Mali, Burkina Faso, and Ghana. Cote d'Ivoire is mostly flat, with mountains in the northwest and a forested interior. The government system is a public, multiparty presidential regime. The chief of state is the president, and the head of government is the prime minister. Cote d'Ivoire has a primarily traditional economic system in which the economy is heavily dependent on agriculture and related activities. Cote d'Ivoire is a member of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS).

Risk Assessment (Provided by Coface)

Country rating: B - Political and economic uncertainties and an occasionally difficult business environment can affect corporate payment behavior. Corporate default probability is appreciable.

Business Climate rating: B - The business environment is mediocre. The availability and the reliability of corporate financial information vary widely. Debt collection can sometimes be difficult. The institutional framework has a few troublesome weaknesses. Intercompany transactions run appreciable risks in the unstable, largely inefficient environments rated B.

Strengths

- Variety of resources: agricultural wealth (world's largest producer of cocoa, coffee, sugar, cashew nuts, rubber), hydrocarbons and ore (gold, copper, iron, manganese, bauxite)
- Infrastructure undergoing modernization
- Expanding middle class, although poverty still affects 30% of the population and child labor has not been eradicated
- Improving business climate and governance
- Inflation kept in check through membership of the WAEMU and its common currency

Weaknesses

- Vulnerable to climatic hazards and changes in the price of cocoa, the main export product
- Deficiencies remain in the management of public finances, infrastructure, access to banking services and the business environment, despite the progress made
- Low government revenues (about 15% of GDP)
- Massive informal economy: 90% of employment and 70% of added value; illegal cocoa production undermines prices
- Large wealth gap between Abidjan and the rest of the country
