

Introduction

The country of Haiti is located in the Caribbean on the western third of the island of Hispaniola. It is bordered by the Dominican Republic to the east, the Caribbean Sea, and the Northern Atlantic Ocean. Haiti's terrain consists mainly of rugged mountains interspersed with small coastal plains and river valleys. The government system is a republic; the chief of state is the president, and the head of government is the prime minister. Haiti has a largely traditional economic system in which most of the economy relies on subsistence farming, and government regulation is widely constrained. Haiti is a member of the Caribbean Community (CARICOM).

Risk Assessment (Provided by Coface)

Country rating: E - The highest-risk political and economic situation and the most difficult business environment. Corporate default is likely.

Business Climate rating: E - The highest possible risk in terms of business climate. Due to a lack of available financial information and an unpredictable legal system, doing business in this country is extremely difficult.

Strengths

- Development and reconstruction programs established with international donors
- Membership in regional organizations (Association of Caribbean States, Organization of American States, CARICOM, CARIFORUM)
- The country received roughly USD 224 million in August 2021 from the IMF Special Drawing Right (SDR) allocation (roughly 1.5% of GDP)

Weaknesses

- Highly vulnerable to natural disasters, including hurricanes and earthquakes
- Low level of development and extreme poverty (HDI ranking of 170 out of 189), deep inequality with poor social policy
- Dependent on expatriate remittances, international donations and the United States
- Lack of infrastructure, particularly energy infrastructure (70% of the population does not have access to electricity)
- Poor governance and low-quality business environment, large informal sector
- Fiscal cost of unreported imports from Dominican Republic
- Political instability and insecurity
