

Introduction

Kazakhstan is a landlocked, transcontinental country located in Central Asia and Eastern Europe. It borders China, Kyrgyzstan, Russia, Turkmenistan, and Uzbekistan.

The terrain extends west to east from the Caspian Sea to the Altay Mountains and north to south from the plains of Western Siberia to the deserts of Central Asia. The government system is a republic with authoritarian presidential rule and little power outside the executive branch. The chief of state is the president, and the head of government is the prime minister. Kazakhstan has a mixed economic system, which includes a variety of private freedoms combined with centralized economic planning and government regulation. Kazakhstan is a member of the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU).

Risk Assessment (Provided by Coface)

Country rating: B - Political and economic uncertainties and an occasionally difficult business environment can affect corporate payment behavior. Corporate default probability is appreciable.

Business Climate rating: B - The business environment is mediocre. The availability and the reliability of corporate financial information vary widely. Debt collection can sometimes be difficult. The institutional framework has a few troublesome weaknesses. Intercompany transactions run appreciable risks in the unstable, largely inefficient environments rated B.

Strengths

- Significant oil, gas and mining resources
- The state enjoys a net creditor position and has a well-endowed sovereign wealth fund thanks to hydrocarbon production
- Abundant FDI
- Floating exchange rate, largely dependent on oil, but backed by substantial foreign exchange reserves
- Member of the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU), China's Belt and Road Initiative (BRI) and the Shanghai Cooperation Organisation (SCO)
- Strategically located between Europe, Russia and China
- Low public debt that is entirely domestic

Weaknesses

- Highly dependent on both Russia through which 80% of its oil exports passes via the Caspian Pipeline Consortium (CPC), and China
- Highly dependent on hydrocarbons (60% of exports by value, one-third of GDP and 30% of budget revenue)
- Inadequate road, port and electricity infrastructure
- Weakly competitive market structures
- Significant non-tariff barriers despite World Trade Organization (WTO) membership
- Weak governance
